

DISCLAIMER:

Preachers and teachers commonly share ideas, sermon outlines and illustrations. It is never our intention to fraudulently present the ideas and words of others as being our own. We attempt to give credit when the ideas of others are used in sermons and bulletin articles. However, when one has been preaching, writing and swapping ideas for a number of years, it is impossible to remember exactly from where every snippet of information comes. If we have inadvertently used the material of another without giving the proper credit, please call it to our attention and we will gladly correct the oversight. If/when we realize that proper credit has not been given we will correct this on our own.
